Developments in Contro- versy Over Vaccination

Charles Castle's attorney plans to ask District Supreme Court for mandamus to compel Board of Education to allow his children to go to school without being vaccinated.

Board decides at meeting that it has not power to give a ruling in the matter, because constitutionality of the law is attacked.

Attorney argues that compulsory education regulation has had the effect of repealing the compulsory vaccination law.

"I shall lose no time in asking for a writ of mandamus to compel the Board of Education to allow the children of Charles Castle to attend the Phelps Public School."

This statement was made today by Charles W. Darr, attorney for the Anti-Vaccination Society of the District of Columbia, who is conducting the test case by which the society is trying to prove the invalidity of the compulsory vaccination law.

The action of Mr. Darr will follow an appeal to the Board of Education to admit the Castle children to school without vaccination, which was refused at a meeting of the board yesterday afternoon.

The board decided the protest was made on the constitutionality of the law and upon a point of interpretation of the law which the board was not qualified to decide.

"The papers will be prepared without delay," said Mr. Darr. "It is likely that the court will act upon them within a week after they are submitted. With the issuance of such a writ we shall be in a position to argue the constitutionality of the law on which the board bases its right to compel vaccination."

It is understood that Mr. Darr will base his arguments on the fact that the old law of 1864, which requires that all pupils "shall be vaccinated or otherwise protected from smallpox" is ambiguous.

"I think it can also be shown that the clause 'otherwise protected,' if it means anything, is fully covered by later laws regarding sanitation, inspection of homes, and isolation of smallpox cases."

"The old law is furthermore repealed by implication by the compulsory education act, which compels all children to attend school, but makes no mention of vaccination as being a preliminary requirement."

Children Denied.

The board voted to accept the recommendation of its vaccination committee, which suggested that the present vaccination law be enforced until the courts made some ruling on the point.

Following this report the board denied the children of Charles Castle admission to the public schools, unless they are vaccinated.

The report is signed by Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey, Capt. James F. Oyster, Henry P. Blair, and W. V. Tunnells, members of the committee. It says:

"The committee has considered the present status of the law relative to vaccination, and has consulted its legal adviser. We are of the opinion that the question of the constitutionality of the vaccination law of 1864, contained in section 274 of the revised statutes of the District of Columbia, as well as of the question whether this act has been implicitly repealed by the vaccination law of 1897 or the compulsory education law of June 8, 1908, are not questions which it is proper for the Board of Education to pass upon, and that the Board of Education has no discretion as to the enforcement of the law of 1864."

Accordingly, this committee recommends to the Board of Education that it continue to enforce the act of 1864 relative to the vaccination of children as a condition precedent to their admission to the public schools of this District as it has been heretofore enforced until otherwise directed by Congress or the courts."

In Big Cities.

The sum of $100, to be known as the "William H. Baldwin prize," will be given annually by the National Municipal League for the best essay on some subject connected with municipal government. The topic selected for next year's prize competition is: "The Administration of the Police Department in Some City in the United States With a Population of Over 250,000."

YOUTH IS REFORMED BY MOVING PICTURE

Views of Sad Mother Brings Confession From Thief.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The heart appeal of a moving picture film filled seventeen-year-old Charles G. Mayer with remorse and caused him to confess that he stole $500 from the Hotel Victoria last August, according to the statement made by the boy to Magistrate Corrigan Young Mayer, whose home is in Denver, was employed as a clerk in the hotel.

"Last Thursday," said the boy, "I went to a moving picture show in Pittsburgh, and saw a film of a young bank clerk who had robbed a big bank and while enjoying the spoils, heard of his mother's illness. He went to a theater to see an old-home play, broke down and confessed his crime. All this set me to thinking of my poor mother, and when I left that theater I was crying. I walked up to a policeman and told him I was a thief."

TO PREVENT COTTON FRAUDS

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 30.—The Texas railroad commission held a public hearing today on the proposal to adopt rules for issuing negotiable and non-negotiable bills of lading by railroads and to make the roads responsible for shipments made on bills of lading. The object is to prevent frauds in cotton shipments.

Chief Topic.

Declaring they were "bound to keep silent" members of the Milk Dealers' Association, including W. A. Hartranft, president of the organization, and A. S. Trundie, chairman of the executive committee, today refused to discuss what happened last night when the dealers held a meeting behind closed doors at the National Hotel.

Officials at the office of the United States District Attorney, on learning of the meeting, declared an attempt would be made at once to learn what transpired.

On previous occasions District Attorney Clarence Wilson has been invited to have a representative present. This formality was omitted last night and newspaper men were told that they could not attend the session.

"I suppose it is the privilege of the milk dealers to hold an executive session if they desire to do so," said Charles Connor, the special agent of the

POISONED WOMAN NEARS RECOVERY

Taken Ill After Eating Sandwich Purchased on Train.

Physicians at Emergency Hospital this morning believe that Mrs. Gordon Long, the young woman who was taken there last night suffering from ptomaine poison, will recover. Her condition today is improved.

The woman, who is twenty-eight years old, and who is a resident of Indianapolis, Ind., arrived in this city last night to visit a friend, Mrs. William Childs, of the Sagamore apartments.

It is said that when the train stopped at one of the small Virginia stations Mrs. Long purchased a ham sandwich. A short time after eating the meat and bread the woman evinced all the symptoms of ptomaine poisoning, and when the train reached this city, the woman, who had been treated by a physician among the passengers, was hurried to the hospital, at the direction of Mrs. Childs, who met her at the train.

LOCUSTS EXPECTED IN EARLY SPRING

Warnings against the springtime coming of the cicada or "seventeen-year locust" have been sent out by the Department of Agriculture to nurserymen and fruit growers throughout the country. The pest is due in May.

As the greatest injury is done by the growing plants by the female depositing her eggs in the smaller twigs, prompt action by the nurserymen can avoid much of the damage.

SCHOOL OPENS TONIGHT.

The Washington School of Accountancy, one of nine similar schools conducted under Y. M. C. A. auspices, will open sessions for the 1911 term this evening with addresses by the principals, Homer St. Clair Pace and Charles Ashford Pace, of New York, and Charles H. Schaepe, of Baltimore. The nine schools will have a combined registration of about 300 students. It is believed.

Have You Voted On This Question of Trust- Tanned Leather and the Four Profits on Every Pair of Shoes?

You know very well that most shoes do not wear as well as they did ten years ago.

You know that they cost you a great deal more.

Leather men say it is because there are not enough hides; that people do not eat enough beef; and that farmers do not raise enough cattle.

Hides are scarce enough in all conscience, but there are other reasons when you look for them.

If you are wearing any other shoes than Endicott-Johnson shoes you are probably paying profits to four middle men before you get the shoes on your feet—the Hide Trust profit, the Tanners' profit, the Leather Jobbers' profit and the Wholesale Shoe Dealers' profit. Don't you think it would pay you to buy shoes made by the only concern in the United States that tans its own leather—

The only shoe house that makes every part of the shoe on the premises and builds its shoe from the ground up, independent of all trusts—

A concern that deals directly with your home merchant and saves you the middlemen's profits?

People in a great many other cities have found that it pays them. It's no experiment.

Endicott, Johnson & Co. are not a small concern, likely to be gobbled up by some combination.

They have become the biggest manufacturers of shoes in the world—thanks to their policy of "Hide to Wearer."

Their styles are right up to the minute. They have the best designers and shoemakers in the business. They make all shapes and sizes.

An Endicott-Johnson shoe is soft and pliable to the foot; but firm and solid, retaining its shape.

One of their great specialties is the ENDWELL line—a shoe for men, that retails for $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00, looks like $4.00 to $5.00 and wears better.

They make shoes for less money than this, and for more.

They tan the leather for every shoe with the one idea of insuring the best service to the wearer.

Now, it is for you to say whether you want this honest tannage—this solid shoemaking—this clean-cut style and high-class workmanship—all for less money than you are now paying (50c to $1.00 a pair less)—and with better wear, mind you, than you have had in a shoe for the past ten years.

You can have it if you want it and if there are enough people like you in your town that want it.

Your name on this coupon is a protest against middlemen's profits on your shoes and trust methods in the hide and leather business. And it is a vote for lower prices and longer service in every pair of shoes you buy for yourself or your family.

Fill out the coupon below and return it to Endicott, Johnson & Co., Endicott, N. Y.
